Re: CC Docket No. 96-45
Virginia Cellular, LLC
Petition for Designation as an ETC in the Commonwealth of Virginia

Dear Ms. Williams:

We write in response to your request for additional information regarding the petition of Virginia Cellular, LLC ("Virginia Cellular") for designation as an eligible telecommunications carrier ("ETC") in the Commonwealth of Virginia pursuant to 47 U.S.C. § 214(c)(6). Specifically, you requested information to support Virginia Cellular's discussion of "wide local calling areas" on p. 17 of its Petition. As described below, all of Virginia Cellular's rate plans have local calling areas that are larger than those offered by the ILECs in the vicinity of Virginia Cellular's proposed ETC service area.

At the outset, we wish to clarify that "local calling area" means the geographic area within which a customer may terminate calls originating from his or her "local network area" without incurring per-minute long distance charges. The term "local network area" signifies the geographic area in which a mobile subscriber may travel and originate calls without incurring per-minute roaming charges. (The local network area for most Virginia Cellular customers is the four-county area covered by its cellular license, although some rate plans offer a statewide local network area.)

Romanda Williams, Esq.

Virginia Cellular's smallest local calling area on any rate plan is its entire service footprint, comprising Augusta, Highland, Nelson and Rockingham counties. This four-county area consists of 25 exchanges and portions of 8 exchanges.

All other Virginia Cellular rate plans have a local calling area consisting of a multi-state region or the contiguous United States. Specifically, customers may choose from a number of "Mid-Atlantic" rate plans that allow customers to place calls to numbers anywhere in Virginia, the Carolinas, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, without incurring per-minute long distance charges. Other Virginia Cellular rate plans allow customers to place calls to numbers anywhere in the contiguous United States without per-minute long distance charges.

Based on a review of the current tariffs of Verizon South, Inc. - Virginia ("Verizon") and Central Telephone Company of Virginia ("Centel"), Virginia Cellular believes that even its smallest local calling area is substantially larger than the largest local calling areas offered by ILECs in the vicinity. According to their Verizon and Centel tariffs, the size of the local calling area depends on the exchange in which a given customer resides. Copies of the relevant Verizon and Centel tariff pages, highlighted for ease of reference, are attached,

The largest local calling areas available to Verizon's customers who reside within Virginia Cellular's proposed ETC service area — specifically, those residing in the Bridgewater, Broadway, Elkton, Grottoes, and Weyers Cave exchanges — consist of only 13 exchanges. No larger flat-rate local calling area appears to be available, as Verizon's extended area calling service appears to have been discontinued. (While Verizon has recently sought to make changes to certain of its local calling areas in Virginia, Virginia Cellular has not studied these filings and has limited its analysis to the Verizon tariff available on Verizon's web site.)

Centel's customers must do with even smaller local calling areas. A Centel customer residing in the Schuyler exchange (the only Centel exchange within Virginia Cellular's proposed ETC service area), and paying the basic $12.62 monthly rate, can only make calls terminating within the Schuyler exchange; otherwise inter- or intra-LATA toll rates apply. For an extra $15.00 per month, the Centel subscriber can sign up for "extended area calling" and have the ability to place calls to the Charlottesville and Scottsville exchanges as well. The largest Centel local calling area — available to customers residing in Farmville — consists of only 10 exchanges.

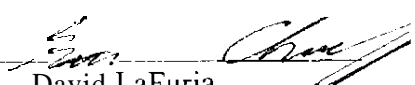

In sum, based on Virginia Cellular's review of currently available tariffs, the ILECs in the vicinity of Virginia Cellular's proposed ETC service area offer their customers significantly smaller local calling areas than those offered by Virginia Cellular, and none of them offers a regional or nationwide local calling area as Virginia Cellular does.
